

Strategic Consulting

The OneSquared and broader Modica team have had a long history of leading the way in web, mobile and ISP solutions over the past 15 years. When it comes to Internet infrastructure and platforms we have seen it, built it and managed it.

What is it?

When you have a requirement for a specific or complex solution, this problem cannot be solved by anything resembling an 'off-the-shelf' solution. In this scenario, OneSquared provides you with a team of highly qualified and experienced people as well as access to a wide range of industry partners and solutions.

How does it work?

We provide a project team with the specific skills necessary for your requirements, and develop customised architecture, pricing and agreed timelines. Projects typically include:

- Technology Strategy
- Network and Platform Architecture
- Storage and load management strategy
- Internet security
- Mobile strategy and integration
- Legislative implications of you online presence and activities

Further components can vary extensively and may well include applications developed specifically for your needs by our web and mobile teams.

Will it suit me?

Our Strategic Consulting clients are typically government organisations or medium-to-large corporates whose IT infrastructure requirements are extensive and/or technically complex. The nature of these projects generally demands larger than normal budgets and extensive resource allocation from both client and OneSquared.
